Excerpt: . . . 11 have had so far is generally we have somewhere between 85 per-cent and 99 percent of the records necessary to do the reconcili-ations that we are doing in our accounting project. HAIRMAN The C. Is the accuracy of the accounting in the other ac-counts at all likely to be repeated in an accounting of the land-based accounts ASON Mr. C. It is my understanding, Mr. Chairman, that we do have difference that involve both our judgment per capita accounts and land-based accounts, but as I said in my opening statement, they tend to be few, they tend to be small, and they tend to net near zero when you add both overpayments and underpayments to-gether. So a conclusion is there are errors or differences between what is in our ledger and what the supporting documents say, but there are not many of them. I have asked our Office of Historical Trust Accounting to inquire with the firms that are actually conducting the accounting, and it is my understanding these represent four of the five largest accounting firms in the country that are involved, to ask the question whether there appears to be any evidence of systemic error in our accounting processing system or whether there has been any evidence of fraud or whether there has been any evidence of our electronic data being altered by hacking or other intrusions in our systems, and the answer to...
